Red Square Mission Statement

Red Square recognizes that humanity is facing a profound global economic, social and ecological crisis brought about by capitalist greed. Red Square therefore promotes agitprop and labor arts in the cause of creating a society based on human needs.

We value solidarity, social justice and equity. We recognize that the future of humanity rests with building an international movement of working people.

Workers, in our millions, have the potential to create another world.

We view ourselves as custodians of some of the rich history of labor militancy and movements for social and economic justice that lie behind the images on Red Square walls.

We focus on the visual arts and document the murals and banners of founder Mike Alewitz and his many collaborators as a starting point for discussion and action.
